Federal Judge Orders Schools To Desegregate Plaquemines

Teachers To Lose $200 Year Locally

By MILO DAKIN

A $200 annual adjustment for city school teachers, instituted three years ago by the Monroe City School Board to offset the "cost of living" will be cut this fall, the Morning World learned Friday.

Board president William Gannaway defended the move as a "financial necessity. We just ran out of surplus money," he said. "Three years ago we had a good surplus, but we said then it might not last."

Supt. of Schools Van D Odom said no formal decision had been made to cut the $200 annual payment before the school board officially had not considered it. 4.76 Billion Measure

LBJ Gets Bills To Aid Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bills designed to give emergency help to the lagging housing market and to hard-pressed city transit systems went to President Lyndon B. Johnson Friday.

The House completed legislative action passing 234 to 1 a measure to provide $4.76 billion additional mortgage purchase funds, and voting 156-86 approval of a bill to authorize $300 million transit subsidies.

The lone vote against the mortgage money bill was cast by Rep. Robert H. MacDonald, D-Mass.

Both are compromise versions of legislation passed in different form by the Senate and House. The Senate accepted the compromises Thursday.

Quick approval by the President is expected, especially of the mortgage bill. This was introduced, beefed up and enacted by Congress at the urging of housing industry and other spokesmen who protested that tight and expensive mortgage money was making it impossible for many would-be homeowners to buy houses.

The new funds would be used by the Federal National Mortgage Association — FNMA — which buys FHA and VA mortgages from the original lenders, thus releasing more funds for new mortgages.

The bill provides $2 billion more for FNMA by changing the borrowing rules governing it. It is now allowed to borrow up to 10 times its capitalization. The bill raises the ratio to 15.

Another $1.76 billion would be provided by authorizing the Treasury to buy an additional $110 million of FNMA preferred stock, thus providing 15 times that amount of additional borrowing power.

Still another $1 billion would be made available by authorizing FNMA to draw an additional $500 million from the special funds available to the President for its various special assistance programs. Accompanying the bill is a report urging FNMA to drop or liberalize its present rule restricting its purchases to mortgages of $15,000 or less.

During the brief debate on the bill, Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N.J., told his colleagues the measure alone would not solve the housing problem, but that without it FNMA's mortgage-buying activities would "grind to a halt by fall."

The transit bill authorizes an additional $150 million in federal grants for each of the next two fiscal years, beginning July 1.

The subsidies may be used for capital improvements on subway, bus and other transit systems and can cover up to two-thirds of the cost of the improvements, above the amount that can be financed from fares.

The bill also directs the secretary of housing and urban development to conduct research on new forms of transit and authorizes grants for research and for graduate fellowships for the study of transit problems.

LBJ Asks Soviet To End Cold War

ENROUTE WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON (UPI)—President Johnson Friday made a new bid to Russia to end the Cold War. In a jet tour of three states he made speeches on war, peace and prosperity, shook hundreds of hands and gave a kiss to a surprised little girl.

It was a bustling trip for the Chief Executive who celebrates his 58th birthday Saturday at his Texas ranch. He was obviously pleased by the crowd turnouts as his tour took him from the magnificent Rockies of Idaho and Colorado to the Oklahoma prairies.

At Denver, he stopped his motorcade when he saw five-year-old Jillian Goldman standing along the road, waving a U.S. flag. He picked her up in his arms, gave her a kiss and sped away—apparently unaware that his father was a Republican.

In his first major address in Idaho, Johnson called on the Soviet Union to end the outmoded Cold War so the world will not "flounder in the backwaters of old and stagnant passions." His second address, at the University of Denver, centered on the relationship of the nation's domestic and foreign policies.

From there he flew to Pryor, Okla., for his final address before heading to the LBJ ranch.

Johnson told a crowd at the National Reactor Testing Station at Arco, Idaho, it was time to think of strengthening peace in the world.

"The dogmas and vocabularies of the Cold War were enough for one generation," said the President. "The world must not now flounder in the backwaters of old and stagnant passions."

"Our real test is not to prove which interpretation of man's past is correct. Our test is to secure his future. And our purpose is no longer only to avoid a nuclear war. It is to enlarge the peace."

Johnson said it would not mean that we have to become bedfellows with the Communists nor that we have to cease competition."

"But it does mean that we must both want—and work for—that day when nations shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war again," he added.

At the reactor station, the President joined in a ceremony awarding a plaque designating one of the installation's structures as national historic landmark. The building contained the nuclear reactor which first produced useable electricity in 1951.

Johnson was visibly pleased by the large turnout at the Denver Airport. Some police estimates ran as high as 25,000, but in any case, the number of

United Gas Hearing Set For Sept. 19

WASHINGTON (AP)—A hearing has been ordered for Sept. 19 on plans to sell the retail distribution system of United Gas Corp. of Shreveport, La.

The Securities and Exchange Commission ordered the hearing Friday on proposals of United and its subsidiary, Pengoil, of Houston, Tex.

Involved are retail gas distribution facilities in Louisiana and Mississippi. Sixteen communities served by United oppose the sale, contending it might mean increased rates for gas.

John T. Miller Jr., one of the attorneys representing the opponents of the sale, said that since United wants to go out of the distribution business, it would be better for the corporation to sell the facilities to the various communities.

Woman's Counsel Changes Tactics

PLAQUEMINES, La. (AP)—In a sudden change of tactics, counsel for 24-year-old Mary Katherine Hampton decided Friday to seek her freedom from prison through the state Board of Pardon and Parole.

Miss Hampton, convicted of two Louisiana slayings she says she didn't commit, appeared to edge closer to freedom from St. Gabriel's women's prison, where she has been for nearly six years.

She was a companion of Emmett Monroe Spencer during late 1959 and early 1960 in what police have called a cross-country killing spree. Spencer, in jail since next Tuesday morning, is being held without bail.

Bailey asked that her position be dismissed without prejudice so that the Pardon and Parole Board can take up the case next Tuesday morning.

Bailey, who defended Dr. Samuel Sheppard in his legal fight for freedom, said legal action could drag on while Miss Hampton was kept behind prison walls.

Several attempts to free Miss Hampton have been made over the last few years.

Dist. Atty. Melvin Barre, who interrogated Miss Hampton prior to the killings of an oil executive and barmaid, told news-

"I think definitely she has a better chance of getting her sentence commuted within a very short while. I don't want to speak for the board, however."

Bailey said the hearing resulted in both sides hearing the evidence for the first time. He said he made the legal move after a three-judge panel in the slaying of Lena Alexandroff, a white woman. He had pleaded guilty earlier in the week to a general charge of homicide.

Police said Burgess was one of three men who invaded the woman's West Philadelphia home last Palm Sunday and raped and beat Mrs. Alexandroff, her daughter and granddaughter. Mrs. Alexandroff later died of the beating.

When the judges came to the bench after deciding the penalty, Judge Leo Weinrott asked the defendant if he had anything to say.

"I'm very sorry," Burgess began. Then his voice trailed off inaudibly. He showed no emotion when sentence was pronounced.

Two others charged with the same crime have pleaded innocent and await trial.

Alaska Votes Few In Town Of Koliganek

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Election officials learned Friday what happened to the vote at Koliganek in Tuesday's Alaska primary. There wasn't any.

The election board chairman of the remote village of 100 in northwestern Alaska wired that he couldn't find two other persons for the required three-member election board.

"The village probably was out fishing or hunting," said Lil Angerman, state elections director.

A few years ago at a village in the Brooks Range north of here the residents had another solution. They wanted to hunt caribou Election Day so they got together and voted a week early.

It took 13 years of battling in the courts to collect $2,000 damages from Cicero Township.

Two years ago the family moved to New York, where they live in Riverdale, a predominantly white neighborhood of high-rise luxury apartments.

"We weren't trying to prove anything," Clark said. "The odd thing is that we were just looking for a place to live—and then our lives were split apart."

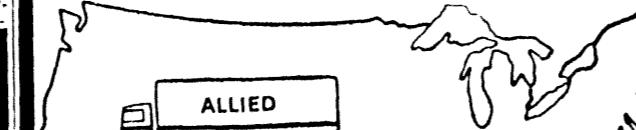

"They even threw our marriage license into the fire," Clark said, as he and his wife watched a television news program reviewing the 1951 incident.

"But it does mean that we must both want—and work for—that day when nations shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war again," he added.

At the reactor station, the President joined in a ceremony awarding a plaque designating one of the installation's structures as national historic landmark. The building contained the nuclear reactor which first produced useable electricity in 1951.

Johnson was visibly pleased by the large turnout at the Denver Airport. Some police estimates ran as high as 25,000, but in any case, the number of

'Drive Safely' Kits Slated For Display

A "Drive Safely Alert Kit" will be displayed on thousands of Louisiana motor vehicles prior to the long Labor Day weekend, Col. Thomas D. Burbank, head of the Louisiana State Police, has announced.

The kits have been and are being distributed by the Women's Auxiliary of the Louisiana State Association of Optometrists. Safety chairman for the group is Mrs. Edward S. Blackmon of West Monroe.

The "Drive Safely Alert Kit" consists of two vinyl plastic pennants flown from the antennas of vehicles to remind motorists to drive with an extra measure of care during the holiday period which begins at 6 a.m., Friday, Sept. 2.

Dr. Irby Dupont, president of the State Association of Optometrists, pointed out that the project has worked well in other parts of the country. The project has the complete support of both the State Police and the Department of Highways.

Coordinating the project for the highway department is Stan Zbozen, safety inspector.

Plaquemines To Jail Aids In Hurricane

POINTE A LA HACHE, La. (AP)—If Hurricane Faith hits Plaquemines Parish, Sheriff Chester Wooten said "we will perform as we always have and jail any outside persons who attempt to interfere."

Wooten made the comment after the Plaquemines Parish Council turned down an American Red Cross proposal to operate three emergency centers in the parish during the current hurricane season. The Red Cross plan provided for operation of the centers by Catholic nuns designated by the archdiocese of New Orleans.

Leander Perez, council president, said the proposed plan would exclude "personnel involved with governmental functions of the parish." He said the plan made no reference as to whether the shelters would be segregated. He termed the plan a "usurpation of the functions of governmental agencies of Plaquemines Parish."

Plaquemines Parish, on the Mississippi River below New Orleans, was virtually covered by water during Hurricane Betsy last September.

LBJ Impresses India Leader

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—President Johnson's "sympathy for the weak and the underprivileged" has made a deep impression on my mind," Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said today.

In a birthday message to the American President, Mrs. Gandhi also said: "We have admired your efforts to build the Great Society and the bold legislative program with which you have backed it."

Johnson will be 58 today.

that one proposed site is near Glenwood Hospital and another is "closer in to town."

The decision to locate the building in West Monroe was disclosed Thursday during a special session of the center's board, meeting in the Louis Locke Room of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, 1800 Stubbs Avenue.

Site committee members reported Thursday that conferences with Monroe Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard had proved unsatisfactory. The site committee had been seeking a location at Selman Field for the state-financed building.

Also approved by the board are plans for a proposed satellite center in Columbia to operate out of the main center in the Twin Cities area.

The architect for the proposed center has been appointed and is awaiting selection of the site before he can begin drawing the plans, the board was told Thursday.

Once a proposed site has been found, the health center's site committee will study the proposal and report to the board at a special meeting early in September.

Two Gas Lines In 'Blow Out'

United Gas Pipeline Company was scheduled to blow out two lines in the west part of Ouachita Parish between 4 and 5:30 a.m. today, a company official notified the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department Friday.

The "blowing out" of the lines, a routine practice which makes a tremendous noise, creates no danger to the area and is completely safe for residents.

The sheriff's department was notified that the lines to be blown out are near the Tennessee Gas Company plant site and in the vicinity of Cadeville.

Housing Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Department of Housing and Urban Development announced funds Friday for these Louisiana projects:

St. Landry Parish, $503,263 loan for construction of 31 low-rent homes; in Leesville, 4 homes; Palmetto, 4; Washington, 12; and Melville, 14.

Lorenzville, $3,600 loan for planning sewer facilities to cost an estimated $300,000.

$4.76 Billion Measure

LBJ Gets Bills To Aid Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bills designed to give emergency help to the lagging housing market and to hard-pressed city transit systems went to President Lyndon B. Johnson Friday.

The House completed legislative action passing 234 to 1 a measure to provide $4.76 billion additional mortgage purchase funds, and voting 156-86 approval of a bill to authorize $300 million transit subsidies.

The lone vote against the mortgage money bill was cast by Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass.

Both are compromise versions of legislation passed in different form by the Senate and House. The Senate accepted the compromise Thursday.

Quick approval by the President is expected, especially of the mortgage bill. This was introduced, beefed up and enacted by Congress at the urging of housing industry and other spokesmen who protested that tight and expensive mortgage money was making it impossible for many would-be homeowners to buy houses.

The new funds would be used by the Federal National Mortgage Association — FNMA — which buys FHA and VA mortgages from the original lenders, thus releasing more funds for new mortgages.

The bill provides $2 billion more for FNMA by changing the borrowing rules governing it. It is now allowed to borrow up to 10 times its capitalization. The bill raises the ratio to 15.

LBJ Asks Soviet To End Cold War

ENROUTE WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON (UPI) — President Johnson Friday made a new bid to Russia to end the Cold War. In a jet tour of three states he made speeches on war, peace and prosperity, shook hundreds of hands and gave a kiss to a surprised little girl.

It was a bustling trip for the Chief Executive who celebrates his 58th birthday Saturday at his Texas ranch. He was obviously pleased by the crowd turnouts as his tour took him from the magnificent Rockies of Idaho and Colorado to the Oklahoma prairies.

At Denver, he stopped his motorcade when he saw five-year-old Jillian Goldman standing along the road, waving a flag. He picked her up in his arms, gave her a kiss and sped away—apparently unaware that her father was a Republican.

In his first major address in Idaho, Johnson called on the Soviet Union to end the outmoded Cold War so the world will not "flounder in the backwaters of old and stagnant passions." His second address, at the University of Denver, centered on the relationship of the nation's domestic and foreign policies.

From there he flew to Pryor, Okla., for his final address before heading to the LBJ ranch.

Johnson told a crowd at the National Reactor Testing Station at Arco, Idaho, it was time to think of strengthening peace in the world.

"The dogmas and vocabularies of the Cold War were enough for one generation," said the President. "The world must not now flounder in the backwaters of old and stagnant passions."

"Our real test is not to prove which interpretation of man's past is correct. Our test is to secure his future. And our purpose is no longer only to avoid a nuclear war. It is to enlarge the peace."

Johnson said it would not mean that we have to become bedfellows with the Communists nor that "we have to cease competition."

"But it does mean that we must both want—and work for—that day when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore," he added.

At the reactor station, the President joined in a ceremony awarding a plaque designating one of the installation's structures as a national historic landmark. The building contained the nuclear reactor which first produced useable electricity in 1951.

Johnson was visibly pleased by the large turnout at the Denver Airport. Some police estimates ran as high as 25,000, but in any case, the number of

Negro Couple Recalls Violence Of Cicero

NEW YORK (AP) — A Negro couple in the Bronx Friday recalled their life in Cicero — one violent day.

Mrs. and Mrs. Harvey E. Clark moved into that all-white Chicago suburb 15 years ago.

A screaming mob of 3,000 wreathed their apartment and made a bonfire of their furniture.

"They even threw our marriage license into the fire," Clark said, as he and his wife watched a television news program reviewing the 1951 incident.

"I believe I abhor violence more than any man in the world," said Clark, 43, a sales executive for an office supply company.

"I couldn't look at things the same way after that summer," said his wife. "Until then I'd wanted what I guess you can call security, peace. But after Cicero that was an illusion. I'm not nearly as self-righteous about anything as I used to be."

The Clarks have a son, Harvey Jr., 21, in the Navy, and a daughter, Michelle, 23, about to embark on a television career in the Midwest.

When they moved to Cicero, Clark was a trained sociologist and graduate of Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn. He was a $60-a-week bus driver in Chicago.

"We weren't trying to prove anything," Clark said. "The odd thing is that we were just looking for a place to live — and then our lives were split apart, bam."

It took 13 years of battling in the courts to collect $2,000 damages from Cicero Township.

Mayor Hatten praised the "realistic outlook" of property owners who, he said, have their city's interest at heart. "Our contact with property owners have been most encouraging. They make offers in line with reality and did not simply have dollar marks in their eyes."

Hilton Lytle, board chairman of the health center, and C. B. Roberts, administrator of the center, told members of the board Thursday that two prospective sites in West Monroe were being considered.

Ethics Commission HearingsOffice Supplier Tells Of Tipoffs

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—A Baton Rouge office supplier testified before the Commission on Governmental Ethics that a state official "would call me up and inform me of every order that was coming out of his office."

John Kane made the statement earlier in a record that was made public Friday as the ethics group heard three cases, two involving Kane and Wallace King, assistant director of the State Parks and Recreation Commission.

At Friday's hearing, King testified that he accepted $352.12 for providing business tips to Kane. The three-hour hearing was punctuated with verbal clashes and a series of recesses to hammer out objections.

King said the checks "represented a commission paid me for helping him...helping Mr. Kane."

Kane said he talked to King about other orders.

"He would call me up and inform me of every order that was coming out of his office and sometimes members of that department could not quite understand the state contract price list and I'd have to go up and explain it to them," Kane said at the earlier hearing.

The record of that hearing was made part of the public hearing Friday.

Commission investigator Ralph Harrell said Kane once told him that he paid King to "protect my orders from the Department of State Parks and Recreation."

Testimony from Lamar Gibson, state department director, showed that Kane filled several orders for the department, including furnishing of the offices of Gibson and King.

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—A 20-year-old McNeese State College coed, charged with murder in the death of a Lake Charles housewife, was returned to her cell Friday after her attorneys lost a bid to have her freed on bond.

Attorneys for Mildred Hannum sought her release in a preliminary hearing on the grounds the state had insufficient evidence to hold her on the charge.

Miss Hannum was charged with murder of Mrs. William Sadighi July 6.

Dist. Atty. Frank Salter said the case will be presented to the fall term of the grand jury.

Salter called only four witnesses during the hearing. Defense attorneys rested their case without summoning a witness.

Rita Hannum Franks, sister of the defendant, testified her sister was absent from their home the night Mrs. Sadighi died. She said her sister returned to her home very upset and nervous.

Mrs. Franks also testified that the handwriting on a love letter written to Sadighi resembled that of her sister. The letter was purportedly written by Miss Hannum in May while she was in Massachusetts on a visit.

Also introduced in evidence was a $15,000 commercial airline flight insurance policy showing Sadighi as the beneficiary. Mrs. Franks testified the signature on the policy was that of her sister.

Jane Fonda Files Suit On Magazine

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Jane Fonda Friday filed a $19 million suit over seven pictures which display her "almost completely nude and with her breasts exposed" in the August issue of Playboy Magazine.

The defendants are the HMH Publishing Co., and Hugh M. Hefner.

Miss Fonda said in the suit filed in Supreme Court that "her professional career and aspirations are and will be in calculably and permanently harmed."

The actress said that the pictures were taken by a freelance photographer who had "secreted himself on a catwalk" above the set of a film she was making in Paris last January. It called for a brief exposure of her undraped back.

During the filming, she said, the set was cleared of all personnel except the director — her husband, Roger Vadim — three camera technicians and an ac tor.

Last Aug. 7, copies of Playboy were seized in France because of the photos. A French judge acted on the complaint of Vadim, who announced he would sue the magazine for $20,000 damages.

Dr. W. L. James, 53, Lady Ursula's fourth husband, and Air Commodore Charles E. S. Lockett, ret. 56, the plane's pilot, also were killed. The bodies were recovered by British and French helicopters.

Lockett, director of a shipping company, lived on the Channel island of Jersey.

The commission denied Klienpeter's motion to quash charges and turned him down on several other objections. Klienpeter filed exceptions to most of the rulings.

Dr. W. L. James, 53, Lady Ursula's fourth husband, and Air Commodore Charles E. S. Lockett, ret. 56, the plane's pilot, also were killed. The bodies were recovered by British and French helicopters.

Lockett, director of a shipping company, lived on the Channel Island of Jersey.

VFW PicksReno Man Commander

NEW YORK (AP)—Leslie M. Fry, a 53-year-old Reno, Nev., attorney, was elected commander in chief of the 1.3 million member Veterans of Foreign Wars Friday. He succeeded Andy Borg, of Superior, Wis.

A World War II combat artilleryman, Fry pledged at the closing session of the 67th annual VFW convention that he will place "great emphasis" on Veterans rehabilitation and legislative programs.

He also told the delegates that if South Viet Nam "should fall to Red aggression, we would have no choice but to get on with the fortification of Pearl Harbor and strengthening of the defenses of the West Coast and Alaska."

Fry stressed that the veterans program he will seek to advance will benefit the entire nation "because they are instrumental in restoring to productivity in the economy that vast army of men who have been delayed and confused by war."

Others elected at the session were Joseph A. Scerra, of Gardner, Mass., senior vice commander; Richard Homan, of Sugar Grove, W.Va., junior vice commander; Ray Gallagher, of Redfield, S.D., judge advocate; Dr. Joseph H. Liberstein, of Oak Lawn, Ill., surgeon general, and Rabbi Oscar Kramer, of Philadelphia, chaplain.

Strike Foils Escape Effort

MONCTON, N.B. (UPI)—One of the first to feel the effects of the national railway strike in Canada was Leslie Joseph Doucet, 28.

Doucet escaped from the Dorchester Penitentiary Friday.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police said they learned he was trying to flee the region aboard a Montreal-bound freight train.

During the filming, she said, the set was cleared of all personnel except the director — her husband, Roger Vadim — three camera technicians and an actor.

Last Aug. 7, copies of Playboy were seized in France because of the photos. A French judge acted on the complaint of Vadim, who announced he would sue the magazine for $20,000 damages.

Employment Service Noose

Another noose aimed at strangling the life out of individual liberty and free enterprise in the United States is to be found in the bill in Congress to expand the U.S. Employment Service.

Determined to fight this bill all the way down the line, to the utmost of his strength, one opponent said:

"This legislation would absolutely deny employers any freedom of choice in selecting employees and the individual any choice as to vocation, area of living, advancement and so on."

"The next step is nationalization of business. All references to cooperation with private employment services were cut out in the Senate action."

Further examination of the bill discloses that it is also designed as a sort of a Secret Service investigation of every employed person in the United States. If this bill, with all of its specified controls over every human action, were adopted as proposed, it would not fall far short of the Gestapo established in pre-war Germany by the late dictator and war-monger, Adolf Hitler.

Combined with other proposed measures hamstringing the individual liberties of the people of this country, it is difficult to see how we would any longer be able to say our lot is any better than that which prevailed in pre-war Germany or is any better than that now prevailing in Soviet Russia. On a proposed amendment to write into the bill provision curtailing the power of the Secretary of Labor to withhold funds from a state, Senator Allen Ellender of Louisiana was shown as voting for the amendment. Senator Russell Long of Louisiana was shown voting against the amendment.

Overdose Tremendous

Congressman Frank Bow, R., Ohio, ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, has charged that legislation pending in Congress to expand the Employment Service is "like trying to fill a pint bottle with 100 gallons of remedy."

Bow said, "This overdose legislation is simply not needed and would increase government spending to a staggering degree at a time when inflation is bringing our nation to the brink of financial disaster."

Referring to the legislation which would create a vast nationwide network of Comprehensive Manpower Centers to provide federal recruitment and placement services for all workers and all employers, Bow said, "This giant federal mechanism might ultimately control every American who works, as well as every American who is unemployed."

Bow said he considers the U.S. Employment Service a worthy and commendable government operation so long as it adheres to its initial function of helping the unemployed who cannot help themselves, the marginal workers, the unemployables in need of training or retraining, in short, those who require special help.

The Ohio Congressman continued, "There is no economic need for the government to recruit employees for corporations (at the white collar and executive level), and even less to find better jobs for workers already

'Double Jeopardy' In Taxes

Out in Elk Grove, Calif., the editor of the Citizen is mightily stirred up over what might be called "double jeopardy" or "triple jeopardy" taxes.

He wrote: "One tax that completely startled this writer (and it takes some doing to do that) is the so-called 'inheritance' tax. My mother, for example, after working side by side with dad, now has to pay taxes (on which taxes have already been paid) as 'inheritance!' Government officials move in . . . tie up bank accounts, anything they can get their hands on. We call it downright 'thievery' . . . We aren't saying anything about passing it on to children who holding well-paying jobs — as these bills propose, and at the taxpayers' expense. In fact, there is no surer way of adding to the inflationary pressures than for the government to undertake such a wholesale program of salary escalation.

Bills Are Suspect

"Furthermore, these bills to expand federal control of the nation's employment machinery are suspect in their timing if for no other reason. Why, we should ask ourselves, are they proposed at a time when our unemployment has reached the lowest level in a dozen years?"

Congressman Bow noted that the Department of Labor reported 2,802,000 unemployed in April, a reduction of 750,000 since April, 1965. The fact that business and industry are complaining about serious shortages in skilled labor and the fact that a quarter million or more of the unemployed have never held a job suggest, Bow says, that the kind of government services most needed are those which the U.S.E.S. — as presently constituted — is best equipped to perform.

He said the protection now being urged in the House and Senate, however, contemplate not merely the domination of the national labor market at all employment levels in every kind of industry, business, professional institutions and in every section of the U.S., but also the compilation of encyclopedic records and data on every employer, every worker and every seeker of work.

Blank Check Deal

"More significant than the blank check the proponents of this legislation expect the taxpayers to sign, and far more dangerous," said Congressman Bow, "is the cumulative and sinister power the bureaucracy seems to be reaching for. To visualize the possibilities, consider that the proposed measures would place the data processing equipment of all government departments — and presumably the records of the Internal Revenue Service, the regulatory agencies, and all other agencies — at the disposal of the glorified, new, super U.S.E.S. The expanded U.S.E.S. would soon be the nation's only employment agency — with citizens needing jobs and firms needing employees dependent on its indulgence!"

The proposal to revamp the U.S. Employment Service at this time, in particular, is an outrage against common sense, as well as against the individual freedom of the people of the United States.

Sylvia Porter, economics writer for the Monroe Morning World, recently reported that 300,000 jobs in the United States are open and waiting for people capable and skilled enough to fill them. The need for a federal employment service has never been less in the last 30 years than it is now.

Informed persons are fully aware, of course, that finding jobs for people (since there is now an over-supply of jobs) is the purpose of this proposed legislation.

The real purpose is to set up a system of surveillance over the lives of every individual in this country and to apply an iron-collar rigidity to the lives of those people.

It is probably quite safe to predict, on the basis of current performance, that when it comes time for this administration to consider such matters as the annual statement or resolution regarding the captive nations, we will see new heights of double talk and depths of soft soap.

THE TRUTH IS apparent: this administration considers communism an external inconvenience rather than a global challenge. With the notable exception of the hard-line statements of Secretary of State Dean Rusk — who every day seems more and more likely to get in trouble for what he says — the administration prefers to act as though aggressive communism doesn't exist. In Viet Nam, even, the administration continues to do its level best to pretend that the war is strictly a local flare-up and not simply a Question Whether Peking Wants Membership

UNITED NATIONS membership is in the bag for Red China — if the Peking rulers will take it.

Red China will definitely be voted admittance at the General Assembly meeting set for Sept. 20. What the Mao Tse-tung coterie will do about it is conjectural. They have given no hint to backstage feelers put out by De Gaulle and others on friendly terms with them.

The UN also will impose new and tougher economic sanctions on South Africa.

The U.S. will oppose Red China's admission, but not as strenuously as in the past. Instead, its efforts and influence will be concentrated on preserving Nationalist China's status in the UN.

THE U. S. WILL back stronger sanctions against South Africa. It favored the original bars, and will support the harsher ones demanded by the African bloc.

At the last showdown on the Red Chinese issue, Nov. 17, 1965, the U.S. blocked membership by a 47 to 47 vote — with 23 abstentions. However, UN insiders predicted the hairline victory would be the last.

Ambassador Arthur Goldberg confirmed that in his strategy conference with President Johnson the other day.

The former Supreme Court

Justice reported that this time the entire African bloc will line up for Peking admission. Last year, 19 of the 26 voted with the communists, and 7 abstained.

Virtually all of these countries are beneficiaries of various forms of U.S. economic aid — totaling more than $1.5 billion since 1949.

BELATED CHECKREIN — A ceiling on federal spending under Title XIX of the new Medicare Act will be voted by the potent House Ways and Means Committee.

Amount of the limitation is still undecided. It will largely depend on report of estimated costs of Title XIX that is being rushed by the Department of Health, Education & Welfare at the Committee's request.

Representative Wilbur Mills, D., Ark., influential chairman, has the votes in the 25-member (17 Democrats, 8 Republicans) Committee to impose a ceiling.

But what happens after that is a toss-up. This is an election year and with all House members and more than one-third of the Senate running, Mills has his work cut out curbing Title XIX outlays.

This provision is an expanded version of the Kerr-Mills Act providing medical care for indigent old people. Now it includes the blind, disabled, children in families with unemployed parents, and others.

Slangily, "We ain't saying it ain't."

This form of "triple take" by the government is not new by any means and the editor was startled only because it developed in his family. It is not a new iniquity of the Johnson administration, as it has been in effect many years, as some residents of Monroe and West Monroe know well.

A husband and wife pay income taxes on what they earn for half a century. Then one dies and the other has to pay "inheritance" taxes.

NOTABLE IN the current fifth anniversary of the Berlin Wall's construction is that the Communists for the first time have themselves turned the event into a public celebration and also for the first time very little attention was paid to the anniversary in this country. If it rated attention here at all, it was usually on back pages.

There was, most noticeably, no highly placed attack against the wall launched from within the administration. Instead, the administration followed its increasingly obvious course of leaning over backward to avoid saying anything mean about communism.

It is probably quite safe to predict, on the basis of current performance, that when it comes time for this administration to consider such matters as the annual statement or resolution regarding the captive nations, we will see new heights of double talk and depths of soft economy.

THIS ADMINISTRATION is, to put it bluntly, the most isolationist we have had in our generation. It is also the most insensitive to our role as a part of the Atlantic community.

Ignore it or not, however, the Berlin Wall remains a symbol of the failure of an American foreign policy that forever fails to take the initiative.

The Communists themselves made quite a point of that in their public celebration of the construction of the wall. Walter Ulbricht, the East German Communist leader, was quoted as taunting the West for its inaction when the wall first went up — as a wire and cinder block barrier which could have been pushed down by trucks or tanks as a flagrant violation of all existing Berlin occupation laws.

It is probably quite safe to predict, on the basis of current performance, that when it comes time for this administration to consider such matters as the annual statement or resolution regarding the captive nations, we will see new heights of double talk and depths of soft economy.

Amount of the limitation is still undecided. It will largely depend on a report of estimated costs of Title XIX that is being rushed by the Department of Health, Education & Welfare at the Committee's request.

Representative Wilbur Mills, D., Ark., influential chairman, has the votes of the 25-member (17 Democrats, 8 Republicans) Committee to impose a ceiling.

But what happens after that is a toss-up. This is an election year and with all House members and more than one-third of the Senate running, Mills has his work cut out curbing Title XIX outlays.

This provision is an expanded version of the Kerr-Mills Act providing medical care for indigent old people. Now it includes the blind, disabled, children in families with unemployed parents, and others. The federal government reimburses the states for their expenditures on the basis of a formula ranging from 50 to 83 per cent.

WHEN THE MEDICARE bill was before Congress, it was estimated Title XIX charges would run around $500 million in the first year. It is now evident that calculation was wholly unrealistic.

Of the 19 states that so far have put Title XIX programs into effect, their estimated cost to the federal government will be $830 million the first year.

New York, the other state, has voted a far-reaching program sponsored by Governor Nelson Rockefeller which HEW estimates will cost the government around $700 million, and could go as high as $1.4 billion.

In addition, a number of other states have served notice they will put Title XIX programs into operation by the Jan. 1 deadline. That means still more heavy federal expenditures, which alarmed HEW authorities fear could total upwards of $2.5 billion in twelve months.

Mills is determined to lock this barn door — belated though it may be. He is sure of Ways and Means Committee backing, but from there on the prospects are unpredictable.

Note: President Johnson has no chance of inducing Congress to increase "user" taxes this year. His proposal has been stopped dead in its tracks by Mills. All he would agree to is a small hike in aviation-use taxes.

STUPENDOUS EVICTION — U.S. ouster from numerous NATO bases in France will necessitate moving between 750,000 and 1 million tons of equipment, material and other supplies to West German, Italian and other allied installations.

In addition, some 300,000 tons of so-called surplus equipment will have to be disposed of, by selling it in France at give-away prices; transporting it to countries receiving military assistance, such as Greece, Turkey, Iran; or turning it over to AID, the agency administering foreign economic aid.

Cost of this stupendous moving and disposal job will be borne by U.S. taxpayers. President De Gaulle, who ordered the ouster by next April 1, flatly refuses to even discuss the matter.

THE SENATE Subcommittee on Foreign Aid Expenditures, headed by Senator Ernest Gruening, D., Alaska, wants the surplus supplies returned to the U.S. for distribution to states and communities.

The Committee is probing the matter and will hold public hearings next month. Pentagon officials will be summoned for questioning. The supplies range from electric light bulbs to heavy machinery, office furniture, refrigerators, household goods, motor equipment, post exchange commodities, etc., etc.

Following a recent first-hand survey of a number of U.S. bases in Europe, Joseph Lippman, Committee staff director, reported "there exists a widespread practice of cannibalization of major items before they are disposed of, which involves stripping vital parts and components. This is done to obtain adequate parts to repair the items that are being retained by the services. The remaining shells have little value when offered for sale, and are entirely inadequate for acquisition by AID to meet the needs of countries receiving economic assistance."

Miss Shore describes the contemptuous behavior of the witnesses, of Mr. Kinoy, and of his partner:

"Before Kinoy's partner had left the room, after delivering his protest statement, his statement had already been mimeographed and was being distributed . . . I watched and heard the carefully laid plans of the demonstrators. The outbursts were timed to gain maximum publicity and effect in the committee room. There were no spontaneous outbursts of outrage. The people involved were tightly organized and disciplined . . ."

Equality' Not Longer Enough For Rightists

IT IS A TOPSY-TURVY world we live in, and here at home, no domestic venture is undergoing a more topsy-turvy experience than the bewildering course of civil rights.

Time was — and it wasn't so long ago, either — when the very name of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was an automatic hate-word before the Potomac. It was like yelling "atomic holocaust" in Bertrand Russell's parlor. At the very mention of the N-Double-A-C-P, ordinarily rational men would start foaming at the mouth and talking in tongues. Alabama passed a corporation law to bar the outfit forever. Even Virginia, usually a State of some enlightenment, passed law to inhibit the NAACP's activities.

The NAACP, of course, was the foremost apostle of "integration."

That was another hate word.

Down South, it still is. But until recently, integration was the great objective of all civil rights.

"Black and white together," went their national anthem, "we shall overcome."

The idea was to promote a society that was "color-blind."

Every vestige of race was to be rooted from the land. All men were to be equal, and none were to be more equal than others.

TOWARD THAT END, the six leaders on hand launched upon a series of demonstrations.

Under Martin Luther King, the doctrine of "non-violence" became part of the very fabric of the South.

If the demonstrators were attacked, they would not strike back.

They would suffer in silence, relying upon their very helplessness to dramatize their cause.

It was a technique that worked with astounding success.

So many groups were wedded to the concept of non-violence that even the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee came into being.

Much of the moral support, financial support, and personal leadership came from white Liberals and moderates.

The NAACP always had a white chairman; so had the Congress of Racial Equality.

The Movement, as it was beginning to be called, was completely bi-racial.

Every conference on the Negro's civil rights featured as many white spokesmen as black.

And during most of this period, dating roughly from Brown v.

Board of Education in 1954,

the very word "Negro" was dis-mained.

It came uncomfortably to the moderate tongue, like calling a Jew a Jew.

Racial identifications were universally spurned. Any reference to a "black man" marked one instantaneously as a racist and bigot.

The whole object appeared to be the extermination of the Negro, as a Negro, through a blindly benevolent process of total assimilation.

WELL, SIR, IT is amazing to contemplate how things have changed. This past Sunday, six of the nation's foremost civil rights leaders were interviewed on "Meet the Press." There in front, gray and grizzled, sat that great conservative, Roy Wilkins, head of the NAACP. Is the white South still sore at the thought of the NAACP? Why, sir, the NAACP is as respected along the Yazoo as the NAM, the AMA, and the Baptist Church. Mr. Wilkins himself is held in the warm regard ordinarily reserved for Alabama fullbacks and Mississippi beauty queens; he stands with the Kentucky Derby, Purina chow, and Coca-Cola; he is a statesman.

Of the six leaders on hand (Dr. King was actually out in Chicago, coming in by remote control), only three are still committed to the old-time doctrines of "integration."

The big thing now is "separation," an embodiment of black power, or black nationalism, or whatever you want to call it. This involves an extreme consciousness of race — in its better manifestations, it involves a strong race pride — and politically it involves an elaborate program of "compensatory" benefits for Negroes as Negroes.

Milk Order

Hearing Set In September

The U. S. Department of Agriculture will hold public hearings in Shreveport, Sept. 15, to consider amending the Northern Louisiana federal milk marketing order, which sets minimum prices to dairy farmers serving parts of Louisiana — mainly Shreveport, Monroe, Bossier City, Bastrop, Ruston, Minden, Springfield, and Mansfield.

Prices consumers pay are not regulated by the order.

Consumer and Marketing Service officials said the hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in the Shreveporter, 3880 Greenwood Road, Shreveport. It was requested by the North Louisiana Pure Milk Producers Association, Inc. They are proposing that:

1. End of the month inventories of packaged fluid milk products be included in Class L.

2. The 5-cent deduction in the Class II price during March through June be eliminated.

3. State-owned institutions be exempt from regulation by the order.

4. Base and excess seasonal payment provisions be deleted from the order.

A handler proposal would modify the transfer provisions of the order with respect to bulk milk moving to nonpool plants.

After considering the evidence presented at the hearing, USDA will be given to file exceptions to the recommendations before a final decision is issued. The final decision would be subject to approval by at least two-thirds of the dairy farmers serving the market, before the changes would be made.

Administrator for the Northern Louisiana milk marketing order is Cleo C. Taylor, 106 East Kings Highway, Shreveport.

Hearing Set

For Principal

A hearing on charges of incompetence against a school principal will be held at 9 a.m. today at the Ouachita Parish School Board.

Mrs. Cecile Burkett, principal of Drew Elementary School, was given the option of a public or private hearing when the board voted to hold the hearing on charges of incompetence by failure to promote harmony among her teachers or community.

The board refused to rehire Mrs. Burkett for the coming school year on the heels of a petition signed by 268 parents and members of the school community alleging a "dangerous situation" at the school.

High Speed Chase

Police Capture Bearded Gunman

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A bearded gunman shot to death five persons and wounded two others in an apartment house project early Friday. Four hours later New Jersey police with guns blazing in a high speed turnpike chase seized a suspect who was held for Connecticut authorities.

It was the latest incident of mass killings which have taken at least 35 lives starting with the slaying of eight nurses in Chicago six weeks ago.

The scene of the murders was near a cafeteria where a man shot and wounded four plant workers two weeks ago before he was killed by police.

New Haven police said the killer knew the victims and had gone to one of their apartments seeking his estranged sweetheart after telling an acquaintance by phone: "I'm going to wipe out all my friends."

The suspect, Arthur Davis, 37, a Negro, was captured on the New Jersey Turnpike after a 95-mile-an-hour, 48-mile, chase during which state police rained bullets after the speeding car Davis was driving.

One of the troopers in the five pursuing police cars shot out a rear tire of Davis' car, causing it to ram a guardrail. He was captured in Washington Township, south of Highstown, N.J.

Davis was armed with a loaded 30-caliber carbine and a Beretta pistol. Police said he did not use the weapons during the chase.

He was held in Washington Township as a fugitive from Connecticut for arraignment before Magistrate William Blacken.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Mary McCleese, 51; her daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Sykes, 24, the divorced wife of professional football player Maury Sykes, formerly with the Hartford Charter Oaks; Mrs. Sykes' son, Michael, 5; Richard Leathers, 27, of New Haven; and Neil White, 55, of Dover, N.C. all were Negroes.

Police said Davis had been living with Gloria Baskerville McCleese, another daughter of Mrs. McCleese, and had gone to Mrs. McCleese's apartment to look for the girl, who had ended the affair. The shootings occurred shortly after midnight.

Francynne McCleese, 14, daughter of Mrs. McCleese, was shot in the abdomen and was in critical condition at Yale-New Haven Hospital. Troy Sykes, 4, Michael's brother, was in the hospital with a jaw wound.

Mrs. Leatrice McClure, another married daughter of Mrs. McCleese, was in the apartment with the others but escaped injury.

Royal McCleese, Mrs. McCleese's 12-year-old son, ran screaming to the apartment of a neighbor, Mrs. Mary Menchaca, who peered from the window. Royal shouted that a man was shooting people in his home.

"I saw this man with a cowboy hat on," Mrs. Menchaca said, "and he had this long rifle, swinging it... walking... walking a little fast but not running. That's all I saw. Then I said, I'd better call the cops."

Police said Davis was dressed in a blue, short-sleeved shirt, black pants and a white straw "planter's" hat.

Police found the body of Mrs. McCleese, who worked for the United House of Prayer, an interdenominational church, in a chair on the first floor of her duplex. Three other bodies were on the first floor. Leathers was found dead upstairs.

Police said Leathers and White were neighbors.

The family collie dog was lying wounded on the floor downstairs when police arrived.

Officers said Davis was employed by the United Nuclear Corp., formerly a division of the Olin Matheson plant where Joseph Davis, no relation, had shot and wounded four persons Aug. 12 before he was slain by police.

Police called the Joseph Davis shooting a "grudge" affair. Earlier that day, he had killed a woman by slashing her throat.

I have often seen the word "Afrikaans" used in newspapers and magazines. What does it mean, and is it an accepted word? "Afrikaans" is, according to a publication from the Union of South Africa, "the most up-to-date language in the world." Actually it is the term used referring to both the people and the language of the area. They are the descendants of the Dutch and early English who migrated to South Africa and became the pioneers in opening up the African nation south of the interior, or Congo, region.

I am interested in television work, not "in front of the camera," if that is the proper phrase, but in the handling of the cameras. But I am not interested in going to college for four years to learn this. Can this be studied without attending college?

A person interested in this phase of television work would gain more, probably, by taking the course offered by the Ouachita Valley Vocational Technical School in West Monroe, than from going to college. The school offers the course to persons 18 or older, who have completed a minimum of nine years of schooling. It is five days a week, six hours a day, for a total of 1,620 hours. The course is divided into six units: orientation, fundamentals of electronics, video equipment, audio equipment, TV production techniques and practical application in TV production. Theory and actual on-the-air practice give the students a well-rounded program. The course is called Television Studio Technology.

If a person places an advertisement in the newspaper stating that he will not be responsible for debts other than those incurred by himself, how long is the statement effective?

According to legal sources contacted, the statement made by the advertiser holds no legal weight. A man or woman might place such a statement in the newspaper with the hope of curtailing expenditures by the spouse by causing merchants to deny credit. However, the law recognizes some expenses, such as groceries, as necessary. Therefore, while the public statement would not stand up in court, it might indirectly benefit a person. Consult an attorney for complete information.

How does one enroll in the Ouachita Valley Vocational School in West Monroe?

According to the booklet, "Learn to Earn," published by the Ouachita Valley Vocational Technical School in West Monroe, entrance requirements for the school vary depending upon course difficulty. The school has a guidance department and a battery of tests is administered every Wednesday morning at 8:45. This series of tests, which takes three or four hours to complete, assists the guidance counselor and the prospective student to make decisions relative to the course desired. A pre-vocational program for those who need help in achieving the required academic level for immediate entrance into the vocational course of the student's choice is also provided. All students must be at least 16 years old, and all high school students enrolling for high school credit must have earned at least four academic credits. Courses offered are Automobile Mechanics, Business Training, Construction Technology, Electronics, Machine Shop, Practical Nursing, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning, Telecasting, and Welding. Further information can be obtained by calling the school at 323-3491.

I have a doll. She used to talk, but her string came out and now she no longer talks. I got this doll from Santa Claus, and I don't know how to get her fixed. Her name is "Chatty Kathy," by Mattel.

Well, even Santa's "Chatty Kathy" dolls can be fixed, so tell Mommy to read this, too. The doll should be sent to Mattel, Inc., at Hawthorne, Calif., to be repaired. Merchants who sell the dolls, and who sometimes speak for Santa in such matters, said the speaking mechanism is patented and should not be fixed by anyone other than the manufacturer. Such dolls are guaranteed and the cost to Mommy and Daddy would probably be only the postage to and from the plant, age to and from Santa.

Please tell me the qualifications and functions of a Notary Public?

From the legal dictionary of District Judge Jesse S. Heard, we learned the qualifications for Notaries Public are quite involved, but generally, in all Louisiana parishes except Caddo and Orleans, any citizen of the state may become a Notary Public. He must post a bond in the sum of $1,000 with the parish clerk of court, promising faithful performance of all duties required by law toward all persons who may employ him in his profession of notary. He must be examined in writing by an examining committee of three notaries, at least two of whom are attorneys appointed by the district court having jurisdiction of the parish in which the notary resides. After receiving the certificate from the court, and having been found competent, he exercises the profession of the notary. The examination may be dispensed with by the court if the applicant has been duly admitted to practice law in this state. Chairman of the local examining committee is Kent Breard, and should be contacted by any prospective notaries, Judge Heard said. "A notary is an officer whose duty is to attest the genuineness of any deeds or writings in order to render them available as evidence of the facts therein contained," the legal dictionary says. "He is an officer known to the law of nations, hence his official acts receive credence not only in his own country, but in all others in which they are used as instruments of evidence."

Is it true that the governor, or former governor, of Nevada, Grant Sawyer, has been arrested in that state?

I have heard this. Interestingly enough, he has been. And for violating an act which his administration supported and he signed into law — attempting to keep a reporter out of a public body meeting. The incident occurred at a meeting of the State Highway Board and the reporter had him arrested long enough for the newsman to get into the meeting. The incident has since become a joke among newsmen and the governor.

West German Socialist Party Attack Stokes Fires Of Feud

BONN, Germany (AP) — The Ministry policies sought to cool off the nation's military crisis Friday, but it was kept simmering with a new attack on Defense Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel by the opposition Socialist party.

Hassel, who instituted a top-level command shakeup, issued a conciliatory declaration to the armed forces in which he dismissed charges that his top generals had been undemocratic and disloyal to the constitution.

Soon thereafter, Helmut Schmidt, the Socialist military expert in Parliament, renewed his call for Hassel's resignation, proposed a reorganization of the Defense Ministry and promised to seek a full airing of the crisis when Parliament's defense committee meets next Thursday.

The crisis erupted with the resignation of three top generals, including the armed forces chief and the head of the air force, in a dispute over Defense the new promotions made by the defense minister.

While the changing of the guard in the armed forces high command appears to have been accomplished smoothly, Hassel's future remained in doubt. His resignation is being sought not only by the Socialists but by some factions of the Free Democratic party, whose support appeared to be trying to convey the impression that they consider the military dispute ended and have turned to more pressing matters — such as the state of the nation's economy.

In announcing the command changes to the troops, Hassel said the Public Services Labor Union had been unjustified in questioning the democratic reliability of the nation's military leadership. Hassel included in his defense Gen. Heinz Trettner, whose resignation as army forces chief the minister accepted Thursday.

Trettner and army Maj. Gen. Guenther Pape, commander of the 3rd Military Region, resigned in a challenge to Hassel's decision to allow the labor union to organize career servicemen. In assailing the army general's alleged motives last Wednesday, the union declared "this shows an armed forces group that is not prepared to accept political decisions."

Miss Neal, in real life Mrs. Roald Dahl, lives at Little Whitefield Lane, Great Nissenden, Bucks, England. She was and is an American citizen, having been born January 20, 1926, in Packard, Ky.

Is it true that the governor, or former governor, of Nevada, Grant Sawyer, has been arrested in that state?

I have heard this. Interestingly enough, he has been. And for violating an act which his administration supported and he signed into law — attempting to keep a reporter out of a public body meeting. The incident occurred at a meeting of the State Highway Board and the reporter had him arrested long enough for the newsman to get into the meeting. The incident has since become a joke among newsmen and the governor.

Are Gypsy Rose Lee and June Havoc really sisters?

Yes, they are. Miss Lee is actually Rose Louise Hovick.

Was Dorothy Lamour ever named Miss New Orleans?

Yes. In the early 1920s she was named Miss New Orleans. However, at that time her name was Mary Leta Dorothy Lamour. From that honor she went on to the top in show business, later retiring to her home in Towson, Maryland.

West German Socialist Party Attack Stokes Fires Of Feud

BONN, Germany (AP) — The Ministry policies. West German government Chancellor Ludwig Erhard sought to cool off the nation's met with his Cabinet Friday and military crisis Friday, but it endorsed Hassel's shakeup, underscoring "the full confidence of the federal government" in the new promotions made by the defense minister.

While the changing of the guard in the armed forces high command appears to have been accomplished smoothly, Hassel's future remained in doubt. His resignation is being sought not only by the Socialists but by some factions of the Free Democratic party, whose support appeared to be trying to convey the impression that they consider the military dispute ended and have turned to more pressing matters — such as the state of the nation's economy.

In announcing the command changes to the troops, Hassel said the Public Services Labor Union had been unjustified in questioning the democratic reliability of the nation's military leadership. Hassel included in his defense Gen. Heinz Trettner, whose resignation as armed forces chief the minister accepted Thursday.

Trettner and army Maj. Gen. Guenther Pape, commander of the 3rd Military Region, resigned in a challenge to Hassel's decision to allow the labor union to organize career servicemen.

In assailing the army general's alleged motives last Wednesday, the union declared "this shows an armed forces group that is not prepared to accept political decisions."

BLIMEY — Fish N' Chips Take Drastic Drop

LONDON (UPI) — The empire out Britain as "Wimpys" in an allusion to the burger-coveting character in the "Popeye" comic strip, ranked 14th in the list of the 21 most preferred foods.

Fish and chips — french fried potatoes — languished in 18th place, ahead only of bacon and number one, its usual closest rival — the veddy proper steak ham and pea pudding (dried split peas mashed and boiled.)

Even spaghetti with meat sauce, in 11th spot, outsold fish and chips.

The survey attributed the changing tastes in part to the tremendous influx of workers from India, Pakistan and the West Indies and to increasingly Americanized teen-ager appetites.

The study held one consolation for tradition, however. Crepe suzette didn't even get honorable mention.

Soon thereafter, Helmut Schmidt, the Socialist military expert in Parliament, renewed his call for Hassel's resignation, proposed a reorganization of the Defense Ministry and promised to seek a full airing of the crisis when Parliament's defense committee meets next Thursday.

The crisis erupted with the resignation of three top generals, including the armed forces chief and the head of the air force, in a dispute over Defense

O'Brien Wins Spot In National Amateur

American Net Stars Advance In Turney

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Defending champions Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle of Australia and U.S. Davis Cup players Arthur Ashe and Marty Riessen stormed into the semifinals of the 86th U.S. National Doubles Tennis Tournament Friday with straight set victories at Longwood Cricket Club.

Emerson, who also won the U.S. Doubles crown with Neale Fraser in 1959 and 1960, and Stolle overpowered England's Mark Cox and Graham Stilwell, 9-7, 11-9, 6-3.

Ashe and Riessen, an Army bound ace from Los Angeles, and Riessen, former Northwestern University Star from Evanston, Ill., romped to a 6-3, 6-4, 15-13 victory over Aussies Owen Davidson and William Bowrey, who upset America's top pair of Dennis Ralston and Clark Graebner in the Newport, R.I. Invitational finals last Sunday.

Emerson and Stolle, top seed in defense of their title, upheld their lofty ranking in ousting the eighth rated Cox and Stilwell in a hard-hitting match.

The Australians won the first set by breaking through Stilwell's service in the 16th game, and then broke Stilwell again in the 20th game of the second set. Cox lost his service in the sixth game of the final set as Emerson rolled to his 22nd straight match victory in U.S. Doubles competition.

Ashe and Riessen had little difficulty against Davidson and Bowrey, the Wimbledon runarups, in the first two sets. But they were pressed strongly in the windup.

The match was decided as Bowrey lost his service in the 27th game and Ashe held his serve, scoring an ace to end the match.

Ralston and Graebner, seeded No. 2, meet Mexico's Marcelo Lara and Joaquin Loyo Mayo while third-seeded Tony Roche and John Newcombe of Australia play the California tandem of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, seeded seventh in quarterfinals today.

The women's division advanced through the third round to quarter-finals.

Grand-Slam Gives Astros 7-4 Triumph

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Aspromonte's grand-slam home run with one out in the ninth inning gave Houston a 7-4 victory over Chicago Friday night.

Earlier, the Astros downed the Cubs 9-8 in a game that had been suspended Aug. 11 in Chicago after seven innings because of a curfew.

The Astros scored six runs in the ninth inning of the regular game, the first coming on John Bateman's leadoff homer.

Then Dave Nicholson singled, Ron Brand and Joe Morgan walked and Sonny Jackson beat out an infield hit scoring Nicholson.

Cal Koonce came in to pitch for the Cubs, and Aspromonte hit his second grand slam of the season into the left field stands.

Ron Santo and Billy Williams hit two-run homers for the Cubs.

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — To look at him, one would hardly think he was capable of punching a golf ball 100 yards, much less 250.

Not exactly a living example of a Charles Atlas physical fitness course, McNeese State's Pat O'Brien stands 5-6 (if the tape measure is lacking an inch) and usually keeps his weight around the 133 pound mark.

Once on a golf course, however, there is apt to appear a rapid change in this mild mannered collegian.

With a clap of thunder and a flash of lightning, this bantam-weight, who has been playing 11 of his 23 years, becomes a heavyweight, capable of driving a golf ball 250 yards from the tee, bending a nine iron shot within a foot of the pin and ramming in a putt of 35 feet or more.

And, where does he get this go? It could be from his morning bowl of cereal, but more likely it comes from the many years that he has spent on and around a golf course.

Eleven years of golf has done a lot for Patrick J. O'Brien, a resident of Lake Charles, son of a professional and the first and only all-American golfer in McNeese State College history.

Next week O'Brien, who will enter his senior year at McNeese State in the fall, will bid for the biggest title in his golfing career, the United States Golf Association National Amateur championship.

O'Brien qualified for the prestige-laden National Amateur (to be held August 31-Sept. 3 in Ardmore, Pa.) in Houston a week ago with a three under par 141 for 36 holes and became only the second resident of Louisiana to earn one of the 149 berths open in the tournament. Theodore Weiss of the Lakewood Country Club of New Orleans also qualified.

No stranger to the National Amateur, this will be O'Brien's second shot at the crown. The bantam golfer with the heavy-weight swing made an attempt in 1964 when the tournament was scored in match play, but was defeated in the third round.

A veteran of numerous tournaments, of which he has won a total of 41 in the 11 years he has played golf, O'Brien believes that he is better qualified for a run at the Amateur title this year than two years ago.

He is two years older and has had those years in which to gain more knowledge around the course. Besides, he has just completed a spring and summer in which he scored several significant tournament wins and gained national recognition.

Among his tournament victories this year were wins in the Gulf States Conference Championship and the Ville Platte American Legion Open.

O'Brien also grabbed the runner-up spot in the NAIA championship tournament that was held in the spring in Shawnee, Okla.

In regarding the opposition that will be awaiting him at the National Amateur, O'Brien is reserved in his comments. He knows that it will probably be the toughest he has ever faced. However, on the eve of this battle, he is poised with complete confidence in his ability as a golfer.

The Louisiana entrant, playing out of the Lake Charles Golf and Country Club, will leave today for the tournament, having plans to play several practice rounds over the course as McNeese (1963), La Tech (1964), and USL and McNeese (1965) co-champs.

All six GSC teams launch the 19th pennant race on Saturday night, Oct. 1. These openers include USL-Southeastern at Lafayette, Tech-McNeese at Ruston, and Northeast-Northwestern at Monroe. Kickoff time for each GSC clash will be 7:30 p.m.

GSC sports information directors also listed their leading candidates for all-star honors in the coming season. Southwestern posted a 7-3 mark which compose this veteran list, and 18 saw starting duty last year.

Seven Bulldog seniors have earned three letters apiece, including Little All-American guard-tackle Brad Hamilton, All-GSC halfback Chester Gosnell, guard-tackle Nolan Sharon, and tackle Jerry Smith.

Northeastern — halfbacks Alton Thomas and Steve Mansur, and tackles Ronnie Sumter and James Kirkendall.

Northwestern — quarterback Donald Guidry, halfback Al Dodd, end Dick Redding, and guard Eddie Mittelbronn.

Southeastern — quarterback Bucky Cotten, halfback Charles Whitney, end Duane Floyd, and center-line back Henry Powell, and center-line back Billy Andrews.

USL — quarterback Bill Bayard, halfbacks Gerald Landry and Dwight Sevin, safety Ed Pratt, guard Brad Hamilton, end Leonard Klempeter, and linebacker Jimmy Edney.

Football Death

LUTCHER, La. (AP) — The coroner said an autopsy Friday showed that 19-year-old Henry Jones, a high school student, died of injuries received in a football scrimmage.

Dr. A. J. Nobile, coroner for St. James Parish, classified the death as accidental. He said Jones died of a ruptured spleen received during a practice scrimmage Wednesday afternoon.

Buffalo Has Problems— & How Sweet They Are

BLASDELL, N. Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills, two-time champions of the American Football League have problems. They only figure to be stronger at four position.

That word comes from new Coach Joe Collier, who succeeds Lou Saban and expects to take the Bills to the AFL throne room for the third straight year despite the loss of key personnel such as Dave Behrman, Bob Roberson, Billy Joe and Pete Gogolak from last year's squad.

Roberson, the team's starting flanker most of the year, and Joe, the No. 1 fullback, went to Miami in the expansion draft while Gogolak played out his option and took his soccer-style kicking tactics to the New York Giants.

But Collier feels she has more than filled the holes.

"We could end up having better men at receiving, running back, back-up positions and kicking," Collier said, then started to tick off the reasons.

He pointed to the return of flanker Elbert Dubenion and split end Glenn Bass, out with injuries last year. He pointed to rookie running backs Bob Burnett of Arkansas, Bill Bailey of Cincinnati and Allen Smith of Fort Valley State. He pointed to promising linemen like Remi Prudhomme of LSU and Greg Lashutka of Ohio State. And he pointed to kicking specialist Booth Lusteg.

"As for the running backs," Collier said, "we haven't had this type of speed in our camp for four years. And with out passing improved because of the return of Dubenion and

Cassius Planning

2 More Fights

Before '66 Ends

CHICAGO (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said Friday he planned for two more title fights in 1966, against Cleveland Williams and World Boxing Association Champion Ernest Terrell.

Clay, who leaves Monday for Germany to fight Karl Mildenberger on Sept. 10, said he hoped to fight Williams in Houston around Nov. 1 and to meet Terrell in Chicago about the last week in December.

Clay had been scheduled to fight Terrell in Chicago last spring, but the bout was cancelled due to discrepancies found in license applications of both Terrell and Clay.

"It's sort of up to Terrell," Clay said. "He's got to come to me with a proposition, but I think we can get together."

Clay said he weighed about 208 pounds now and would hold that approximate weight for the Mildenberger fight.

"I've never seen him fight," he said. "And I don't know anything about him. I'll just have to feel my way, but I never plan my fights anyway."

Clay's trainer, Angelo Dundee, arrived Thursday from Florida to begin directing Clay's workouts. Dundee said Clay would work out again today and Monday before his departure for Germany.

Cincinnati Reds Defeat Phillies

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vada Pinson knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly and another was scored on a two-base error by Jackie Brandt as the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 Friday night.

Pete Rose led off the Reds' fourth inning with a single and went to third on a single by Tommy Helms. One out later, Pinson scored Rose with a sacrifice fly to center field.

In the sixth inning, Helms doubled with two out, and scored when Brandt dropped a ball hit into deep center by Don Johnson.

Reds' starter Jim O'Toole was lifted in the seventh inning, but recorded his fifth victory against six losses.

Dear Abby

Every Mother Should Have Your Problems

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You certainly don't know much about eggs. A woman wrote to say that her husband came home with some eggs he had bought from a farmer, and they tasted horrible. They later found out that the farmer had sold him DUCK EGGS. And you let it pass as though they should have expected duck eggs to taste horrible.

Abby, fresh duck eggs are every bit as delicious as chicken eggs. We raise geese and ducks especially for the eggs. The eggs are wonderful, and the only difference is in the size.

MRS. E.

DEAR MRS. E.: Twenty lashes with a duck feather for this Iowa-born writer who should have known better. Of one thing I am certain, duck egg on the face is every bit as embarrassing as chicken egg.

DEAR ABBY: Let me start out by saying that I love animals. I have had pet dogs, cats, birds, skunks, and even two king snakes. I recently read in the newspaper where someone left nearly $200,000 to a pair of cats! And it was stipulated that in twenty years, or after the cats died, the remaining money should go to a hospital and church. Now if that isn't the most ridiculous thing you have ever heard of, what is?

I can see leaving enough money to feed and care for pets, but for a hospital and a church to have to wait 20 years for a donation because a couple of animals have inherited it, is downright disgusting. There ought to be a law against leaving money to animals. Will you see what you can do about it, Abby?

High Fashion Knits Inspired By Italian Designers Have Great Sense Of Color

BY FLORENCE DE SANTIS

American buyers in Italy for the fall collections always make a point of visiting such knit designers as Mirsa, Aponte and Ava-Golf. One of the major triumphs of Italian fashion has been knitwear. It can fairly be said that all the current love for knits has been inspired by the Italian flair.

Besides the work of Italian designers themselves, a number of American knitwear firms have sought Italian inspiration in the design and even the making of high fashion knits.

What the Italians brought to knits was a new sense of color and a bold extension of techniques which produced effects rarely seen in knitwear before. They saw no reason why knits should be confined to travel and everybody's Aunt Emma.

Today, knitwear is among the chief Italian exports, and the influence of Italian design in this field has created a vast expansion in American knitwear. The most fashionable knits, of course, are still to be found among high fashion firms, such as Gino Paoli, which is American, but does its couture line of knits in Italy.

TWO THEMES

For this fall's collection, two themes strike Gino Paoli designers as fashion-right. One is stripes and the other is a translation of the fury look into the loops of knitwear.

For daytime suit-costumes, pin stripes look sharp, in a cardigan-style jacket fastened only by its waistline belt, which is also in pin stripe, as in the collarless neckline. The high-necked shell beneath repeats the theme, but reverses the colors.

Rehearsal Dinner Honors Couple In Mobile, Alabama

Of course, all the suits are winter white, with the stripes in taupe, black or cranberry.

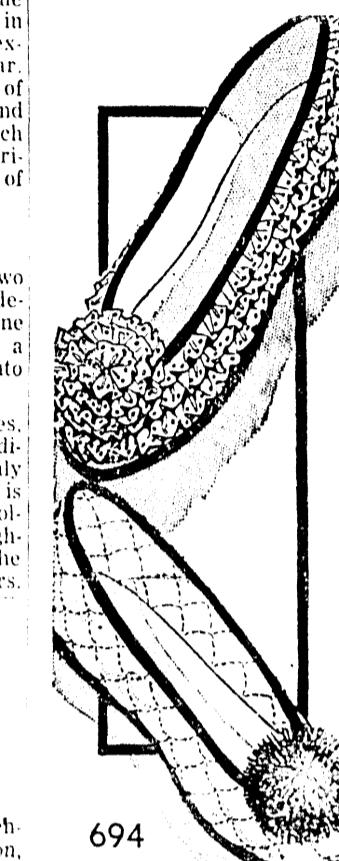

In dresses, Gino Paoli likes the stripes wider, to the point of being broad bands of vertical color. The silhouette is the easy shift, with a high cuff collar accented by a single large button, and the sleeves are three-quarter. Again, the color scheme is based on white, paired with black, taupe or mustard.

The spread of this kind of high fashion knitting is made very evident by the number of knits now seen in the collections of American high fashion designers who never used them before. The jersey skimmer dress, for example, appears in most collections as a regular part of the coat costumes.

In evening gowns, such high fashion designers as Junior Sophisticates and Anne Fogarty, use lame knits for their most striking styles. The lame knit two-piece dress has become almost a classic among cocktail dresses.

It's entirely possible this fall for the fashion-minded woman who also likes the practicality of knits to have an entire wardrobe in them, whether in coats that look like woven tweeds, suits and dresses of the Gino Paoli kind, coat ensembles or cocktail and evening dresses.

Dear AbbyEvery Mother Should Have Your Problems

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You certainly congregate anywhere but here. Of course I'd rather have them here than on the streets, but I would like to know how to get some of the other mothers to take in this mob occasionally.

SAN MATEO MOM

DEAR MOM: Every mother should have your problems. There must be something about your yard, your son, or your "hospitality" that draws these boys. If you don't say anything to spoil it, I won't.

DEAR ABBY: Tell the 11-year-old who couldn't stand the noise her father made when he ate carrots, celery and other crunchy food that I would be glad to trade places with her. My father can eat only foods which have been liquified which he takes thru a tube.

DEAR ABBY: Let me start out by saying that I love animals. I have had pet dogs, cats, birds, skunks, and even two king snakes. I recently read in the newspaper where someone left nearly $200,000 to a pair of cats! DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think any law attempting to limit the individual's right to dispose of what is lawfully his would be unconstitutional. If not, it should be. So we'll just have to suffer such extravagant sentimentality and be glad it doesn't happen every day.

DEAR ABBY: For eight years now I have had this neighborhood gang of boys (ages from 10 to 15) who show up daily to play with my son. During the summer they go home only to sleep and eat. One day I counted 19 boys spread over our property. You wouldn't believe the noise!

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Richard Ringheim, 1000 Emerson, Monroe, entertained at a rehearsal dinner Saturday night in the Palm Room of the Ramada Inn at Mobile, Ala., prior to the wedding of their son, Marcus Richard Ringheim Jr., and Miss Marilyn Jenkins of Mobile on Sunday.

Guests included the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Jenkins, Cecile, Elizabeth and Louise Jenkins, of Mobile; Mrs. J. H. Nunnally, of Bastrop, grandmother of the bride; Misses Gay and Gail Morgan, cousins of the bride; James V. Jones Jr. and James Lee Brown Jr., all of Bastrop; Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Pohlman III, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. John Lolley, Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamilton of Minden; Bert Keats, Doug Jenkins, both of Ruston and Warren Edward Ringheim of New York, N.Y.

A recreation period featuring games was held with prizes awarded to Mrs. Dorothy Pinton, Mrs. Lillie Williamson, Mrs. Frances Bamburg, Mrs. Neita Proffer and Miss Pam Proffer.

Following lunch a brief business session was held, with a discussion on the agriculture booth for the parish valley fair, and concerning the September council meeting.

The next meeting will be at the community center, September 20.

Make the sandwiches and put small squares of wax paper between them as you stack them in the can.

I found that I can put as many as eight sandwiches in a three-pound can. Saves time wrapping... and saves waxed paper.

Put the plastic lid on tightly and they stay moist.

The cans can be nested in ice cubes or chipped ice for picnics.

Mrs. Henry Moquin

Dear Heloise:
For those women who travel and carry a large purse as I do...

I find that if as many items as possible are placed end up — in file fashion — it is much easier to find things. The articles you want most often do not work to the bottom of the purse.

Your passport, itinerary, folder with tickets, address book, wallet and even extra camera film can be stood on end.

Put small articles such as lipstick, compact, etc., in a side pocket if there is one in your purse.

Then use a large safety pin to fasten luggage keys to the lining of your purse — near the top where they are handy.

Emerie Feliz

Dear Heloise:
You do not need to put non-skid liquid on small rugs to keep them from slipping...

All I do is buy ½" foam rubber, and cut it to fit under a rug.

It will never slide.

Mrs. Frank Koch

Dear Heloise:
To keep vacuum cleaner attachments and extension cord together when using or storing, I put them in an old beach bag with handles.

The bag can be hung on the door knob of the room you are working in when house cleaning.

Sure saves many steps trying to locate an attachment when you need it.

Martha Tanguay

You could even use a knitting bag or a large old purse for the same purpose.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:
My husband likes his coffee so strong and thick you can almost cut it with a knife! I prefer mine rather weak.

The simple solution is to keep a pot of hot water on the stove, of course, all the suits are white, with the stripes in dress, according to the jewelry used.

WOOL FRINGE

Gino Paoli also uses wool fringe on a suit, with a tunic-length, semi-fitted jacket, cuffed in fringe so thick it looks like fur. There's a matching detachable boa, too.

The spread of this kind of high fashion knitting is made very evident by the number of knits now seen in the collections of American high fashion designers who never used them before. The best is a coat costume, the coat in black wool knit lined and faced in white, thickly looped wool. The dress beneath is a white knit skimmer of the kind

In evening gowns, such high-fashion designers as Junior Sophisticates and Anne Fogarty use lame knits for their most striking styles. The lame knit two-piece dress has become almost a classic among cocktail dresses.

It's entirely possible this fall for the fashion-minded woman who also likes the practicality of knits to have an entire wardrobe in them, whether in coats that look like woven tweeds, suits and dresses of the Gino Paoli kind, coat ensembles or cocktail and evening dresses.

'Red Guards' Order For All Non-Communist Parties To Disband Shatters Facade

TOKYO (AP) — The young party Chairman Mao Tze-tung's Red Guards of Peking have told all non-Communist parties to dissolve, thus shattering Red China's facade of a united front, a Japanese press report said Friday.

First to comply was the Democratic League, once the most influential of the eight non-Communist parties. Formed in 1941 by intellectuals in Nationalist China, its leaders flocked to Peking when the Communists took over the mainland in 1949.

Most quarters in Tokyo were puzzled by the order, reported by the Peking correspondent of the newspaper Asahi, since all the eight minor parties were nothing but figureheads.

Apparently it means that the Communist regime, which has set up the teen-age Red Guards and spurred them to action, has decided to dispense with the parties while it pushes a campaign against all opponents of however, had done somewhat better. Two leaders, Tsai Ting-kai and Chang Chien, former nationalist generals who defected to the Communists, are deputy chairmen of the National Defense Council. They were listed among those present at the Aug. 18 purge rally presided over by Mao and Defense Minister Lin Pao, now believed No. 2 man in China and director of the purge.

Second to quit was the revolutionary Committee of the Kuomintang, formed in 1948. Expected to fall quickly into line are the China Democratic National Construction Association, the China Association for Promoting Democracy, the Chinese Peasants and Workers Democratic party, the Taiwan Democratic Self-Government League, the China Chih Kung party and the Chin San Society.

The Democratic League's leadership was riddled by 1957 antirightist purge. Many of the leaders were fired from their minor government posts.

The company was hacking through the jungle when it came under sniper fire from 100-foot trees.

Hey Kids! Studying Won't Damage Eyes

Dear Dr. Steinrohn: I have been studying a lot lately, reading for hours at a time. Occasionally I get headaches. Is it possible there is some connection? — Mr. O.

Comment: Many youngsters in high school and college wonder if they study too much. They think they may be injuring their eyes through hours of reading. Not so, according to my colleagues who specialize in diseases of the eye.

You can study as much as necessary, as long as you take an occasional break for a few minutes to look out the window into the distance. At night, simply stop reading for while at intervals. Be sure to have adequate lighting conditions and you can read on and on with little fear you are straining your eyes.

However, if you have headaches, it might be advisable to have an eye checkup. Nearsightedness, farsightedness or astigmatism might produce eye strain and consequent headaches.

Eyes do get tired, you know. Exercise your arm or leg muscles more than usual and you are not surprised to find some soreness or stiffness the next day. Eye muscles are no exception. Instead of actually getting sore, they may cry out for rest by instigating a headache once in a while.

REASONS FOR BALDNESS

Dear Dr. Steinrohn: Is baldness caused only by heredity? — Mr. L.

Comment: Heredity is important, but there are other reasons. Perhaps male hormones are involved. Some say the more male hormones, the less hair.

Completely bald men find satisfaction in occasional articles which hint that virility is in direct proportion to amount of baldness. I wonder why they have to find such balm for their feelings. I have known many bald men who were more attractive than others with a full head of hair.

Yet men and women who are losing their hair are constantly looking for creams and other treatments which will restore it.

(Lately they have been buoyed up by news that a testosterone mixture, rubbed into the scalp, will promote hair-growth.

We think there are other reasons for loss of hair. For younger women, for example, this seems to be an increasing problem. For them, hair loss may be due to too many permanent waves and dye treatments, too roughly teasing their hair or using curlers which tighten and pull at the scalp. Even youngsters with tight pony tails often promote hair loss.

As unsuspected illness is sometimes the cause of hair loss, a physical examination is in order. Women who lose hair after they have given birth can find some satisfaction in knowing that the hair usually complication won't be devilish you.

Hey Kids! Studying Won't Damage Eyes

Dear Dr. Steinrohn: I have been studying a lot lately, reading for hours at a time. Occasionally I get headaches. Is it possible there is some connection? — Mr. O.

Comment: Many youngsters in high school and college wonder if they study too much. They think they may be injuring their eyes through hours of reading.

Not so, according to my colleagues who specialize in diseases of the eye.

Psychological treatment of baldness is more important than any other. If you convince yourself that your best girl doesn't have to run her hands through your hair to be happy, you've got it made.

Only those who have suffered through the tortured days and nights of a shoulder bursitis know how much will it require to move that shoulder. How much easier it is to keep it quiet and relieve some of the misery caused by motion.

But this temporary surcease from pain only leads to greater trouble later on: the frozen shoulder. It gets so you can't move it without pain. You can't lift your forearm up to the level of your chin. You can't hang a picture because you can't reach up there to drive a tack into the wall. Mrs. D. Writes:

Dear Dr. Steinrohn: Why don't you warn people with bursitis to get treatment right away. First thing they know, they will have a frozen joint. This will give them more pain and trouble than they can possibly realize.

That's what I am trying to do. The stiff, painful shoulder becomes frozen because of lack of motion. It's natural to overcome pain by reducing motion. But this lack of activity causes adhesions in the tissues around the joint.

If it is bursitis, you had better resolve to move that joint no matter how it hurts at first. The more you try to protect it by keeping it quiet, the greater chance you will have a frozen joint.

The doctor will prescribe treatment which should shorten its course and diminish pain. Some advise a series of X-ray treatments; others, injections of hydrocortisone; others suggest ultrasound.

But if you rely on self-treatment and the weeks and months go by, you invite the immobility we call the frozen shoulder. By then, it's usually too late for overcome its rigidity and stiffness.

Such patients may have to be put under an anesthetic to undergo manipulation to free the joint of adhesions. Sometimes even surgery is necessary to do the job.

So you can see that, although painful, it's wiser to prevent the frozen joint. Early activity, and proper treatment, can practically guarantee that this complication won't bedevil you.

Mother Of 5 Marines

Believes In U.S. Role

RUMSON, N.J. (AP) — "I thank God that I am in this country. Those who advocate getting out of Viet Nam are not in Viet Nam."

"The United States is doing the best it can to help those stamp out hate and communism. If it wasn't done there, it would be dumped in our own laps and we would be fighting here."

So said Mary Hoffman after receiving a letter earlier this week from President Lyndon B. Johnson congratulating her for having five sons in the U.S. Marine Corps.

"If my boys had their way, they would all be in Viet Nam,"

Mrs. Hoffman said. "They are all very proud to be helping to preserve this way of life and they have little patience with the people who condemn this country with their stupid ideas."

The Hoffman boys began forming their own private Marine Corps in 1957 when George, now 28, enlisted. He's now a lieutenant and head meteorologist at the Cherry Point, N.C., Marine base.

Henry, 25, enlisted in 1958. He's a staff sergeant stationed at Garden City, N.Y. Next came Walter, 23, who joined up in 1962. He's a corporal attached to the U.S. Embassy guard in Athens.

The fourth brother, Robert, 22, is a corporal recently assigned to Viet Nam.

When Richard, 20, graduated from high school, the local recruiting sergeant asked the Hoffmans, "Where is your fifth son?"

Richard enlisted last January. A private first class, he is stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

"It was like a chain reaction," said the father, Henry, a Pennsylvania Railroad policeman.

There's a sixth son — Joseph, 13. He may have to wait a few years, but, says his father, "he walks around with a pack on his back and drills the neighbors' sons." The Hoffmans also have two daughters.

In his letter, President Johnson said he learned only recently that the Hoffman family was the only one in the nation with five sons on active military duty. He said this is unprecedented in the Marine Corps. "I am deeply impressed by this record," the President wrote. "But just as I am proud of them, I also want to commend you for imparting to them a deep sense of patriotism and a full understanding of the responsibilities of citizenship. As long as we have families such as the Hoffmans, I have not the slightest doubt that the liberty this nation has enjoyed for almost 200 years will continue to be a birthright for future generations of Americans."

The document acknowledged that "undoubtedly, there are occasional slip-ups. But they should not obscure the fact that the program is a good one and that the problems of these families are receiving and will continue to receive compassionate attention by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps."

The Pentagon noted "it has been suggested recently in the press that the services could pool their resources to provide highly trained personnel to regularly visit dependents, explain their rights, help with filling out forms, offer legal advice and aid them in dealing with government agencies."

"This suggestion," the Pentagon said, "is substantially the system which is presently in effect through the casualty and survivors assistance programs of all four services."

The Pentagon said next of kin are provided information on missing and captured men as rapidly as it becomes available.

"Frequently, the information is fragmentary, not from any reluctance on the services' part to release it, but from the fact that information on personnel held by the enemy simply is not readily available," it explained.

The Pentagon said each serviceman fills out a record of emergency data which, among other things, designates who shall receive specific percentages — determined by him — if his pay becomes missing or is captured.

This amount is paid automatically if the man is missing or captured, and his wife's allotment may be modified or increased if the service finds the ready until "sometime next month insufficient to meet a week," the Pentagon said.

"In practice all four services, for the September 24 second through the finance and casualty assistance officers, act been open since the August 13 promptly on dependents' re-primary after being closed the quest for additional money," preceding 30 days as required by the Pentagon said. If necessary, by state law.

Mrs. Lucky said "many" persons had registered to vote following the August election, but Cross, the Service Aid Society that "we haven't had time" to bring records up to date.

Richard enlisted last January. A private first class, he's stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

"It was like a chain reaction," said the father, Henry, a Pennsylvania Railroad policeman.

There's a sixth son — Joseph, 13. He may have to wait a few years, but, says his father, "he walks around with a pack on his back and drills the neighbors' sons." The Hoffmans also have two daughters.

In his letter, President Johnson said he learned only recently that the Hoffman family was the only one in the nation with five sons on active military duty. He said this is unprecedented in the Marine Corps.

"I am deeply impressed by this record," the President wrote. "But just as I am proud of them, I also want to commend you for imparting to them a deep sense of patriotism and a full understanding of the responsibilities of citizenship. As long as we have families such as the Hoffmans, I have not the slightest doubt that the liberty this nation has enjoyed for almost 200 years will continue to be a birthright for future generations of Americans."

The document acknowledged that "undoubtedly, there are occasional slip-ups. But they should not obscure the fact that the program is a good one and that the problems of these families are receiving and will continue to receive compassionate attention by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps."

The Pentagon noted "it has been suggested recently in the press that the services could pool their resources to provide highly trained personnel to regularly visit dependents, explain their rights, help with filling out forms, offer legal advice and aid them in dealing with government agencies."

"This suggestion," the Pentagon said, "is substantially the system which is presently in effect through the casualty and survivors assistance programs of all four services."

The Pentagon said next of kin are provided information on missing and captured men as rapidly as it becomes available.

Frequently, the information is fragmentary, not from any reluctance on the services' part to release it, but from the fact that information on personnel held by the enemy simply is not readily available," it explained.

The Pentagon said each serviceman fills out a record of emergency data which, among other things, designates who shall receive specific percentages — determined by him — his pay if he becomes missing or captured.

This amount is paid automatically if the man is missing or captured, and his wife's allotment may be modified or increased if the service finds the amount insufficient to meet family needs, the Pentagon said.

"In practice all four services, through the finance and casualty assistance officers, act promptly on dependents' requests for additional money," the Pentagon said. If necessary, it added, the family may be assisted in receiving emergency loans from the American Red Cross, the Service Aid Society and relief funds.

The books closed Wednesday for the September 24 second Democratic primary. They had been open since the August 13 primary after being closed the preceding 30 days as required by state law.

Mrs. Lucky said "many" persons had registered to vote following the August election, but that "we haven't had time" to bring records up to date.

Mightiest Missile Explodes On Launch

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A missile rained into the sea 12 to 30 miles away from the coast. The 700-ton rocket, second to Saturn 1 super rocket messages to U.S. troops in Viet Nam, exploded in a flash of orange and pink fire 80 seconds time at 10 a.m. EDT. It soared into the clear blue sky atop a geyser-like column of smoke.

The failure shattered a string of four straight launch successes for the triple-barreled Titan 3C and stalled Defense Department plans to double the size of its spaceborne network of radio relay stations.

Three hours after the spectacular blow up, the Air Force traced the trouble to a faulty 17-foot long satellite cover on the Titan's nose. At least half of the protective fairing ripped off the 124-foot rocket as it raced 16 miles above the sea.

A trouble-detecting system aboard the Titan sensed the erratic behavior and triggered a device that blew the rocket apart.

The $15-million vehicle erupted into an orange flash seven miles off shore. Then, as the liquid fuel tanks in its core were ruptured, a giant cloud of pink flame and smoke developed.

"It actually destroyed itself in flight," said Col. Marc Ducoet, the Titan 3C launch chief.

More than a dozen pieces of fiery debris streaked over the ocean, trailing snake-like ribbons of smoke as they — particularly in Viet Nam.

Mightiest Missile Explodes On Launch

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — America's mightiest military rocket, carrying eight communications satellites for flashing messages to U.S. troops in Viet Nam, exploded in a flash of orange and pink fire 80 seconds after a perfect launch Friday.

The failure shattered a string of four straight launched successes for the triple-barreled Titan 3C and stalled Defense Department plans to double the size of its spaceborne network of radio relay stations.

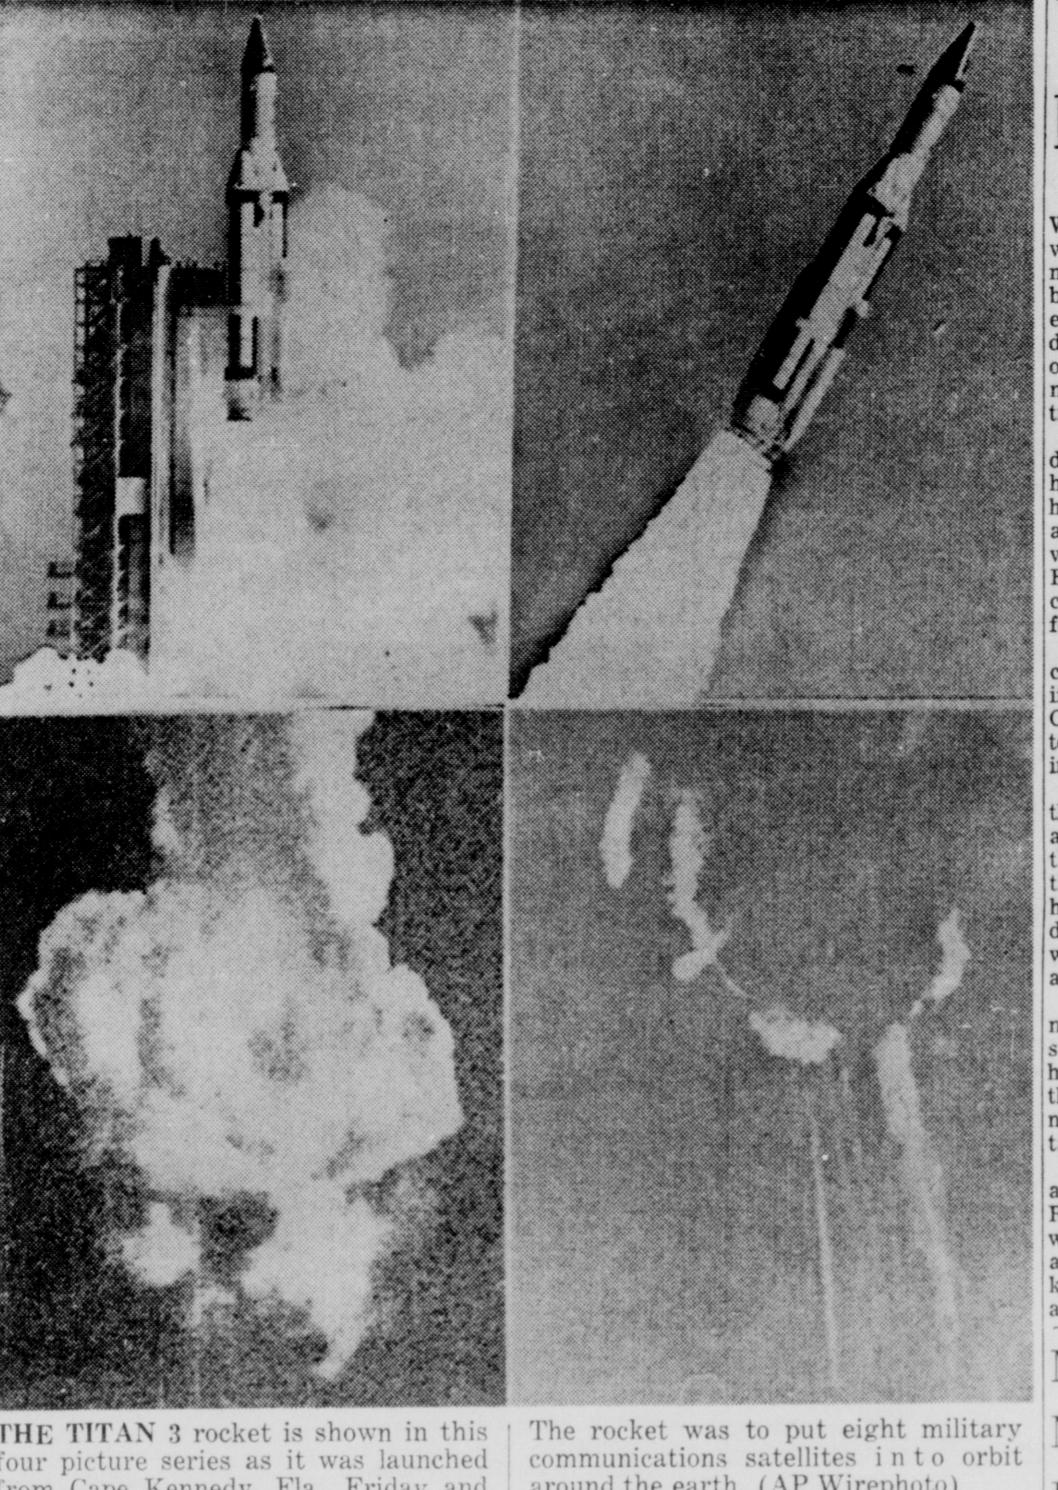

Three hours after the spectacular blow up, the Air Force traced the trouble to a faulty 17-foot long satellite cover on the Titan's nose. At least half of the protective fairing ripped off the 124-foot rocket as it raced 16 miles above the sea.

A trouble-detecting system aboard the Titan sensed the erratic behavior and triggered a device that blew the rocket apart.

The $15-million vehicle erupted into an orange flash seven miles off shore. Then, as the liquid fuel tanks in its core were ruptured, a giant cloud of pink flame and smoke developed.

"It actually destroyed itself in flight," said Col. Marc Ducote, the Titan 3C launch chief.

More than a dozen pieces of fiery debris streaked out over the ocean, trailing snake-like ribbons of smoke as they — particularly in Viet Nam.

STEPHEN SMALE
... Hustled Away

Rough Reds Give Critic Uneasy Time

MOSCOW (AP) — An American professor who made some strong remarks about the Soviet Union had some uneasy moments Friday with Soviet strong-arm men but ended up being treated politely.

Stephen Smale, who had led Viet Nam protests at Berkeley, Calif., told reporters Soviet intellectuals are discontented and unable to express their discontent.

Smale also said the Soviet intervention in the 1956 Hungarian uprising was brutal. But U.S. actions in Viet Nam are "more dangerous and more brutal," the 36-year-old mathematician added.

A Soviet woman official interrupted Smale's news conference on the steps of Moscow State University and summoned him to a meeting with the secretary-general of the international congress of mathematicians.

Smale is here to attend the congress and was honored as one of the world's four leading young mathematicians for showing that it is theoretically possible to turn a spherical object inside out without tearing or cutting it.

From the meeting with the secretary-general, Smale was hustled to a car by several men who acted like Soviet police men.

The men, led by a rough-acting man in a yellow polo shirt, blocked American reporters from talking further with Smale.

Smale said later he was uneasy about the situation and added he never did learn who the man in the yellow polo shirt was.

They took him to a Soviet news and feature agency for a private interview and later, on his insistence, took him back to the university, Smale said.

"They were polite," he noted.

"One can make some wild guesses" about the situation "but they would all be conjectural," he went on.

Smale was cochairman of the Berkeley area Viet Nam Day Committee that led protests last year, including efforts to block troop trains. He was named in subpoena issued by the House Committee on Un-American Activities for its hearings last week on Viet Nam protests. The subpoena was not served because he was in Europe.

Judge Fines Klanwoman $50, Costs

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A Raleigh City Court judge Friday found a Ku Klux Klan woman guilty of simple assault and fined her $50 and costs.

Mrs. William L. Beach, 60, of Sanford was found guilty of assault on Mrs. Louise A. Krame, a June graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill July 31 at a Klan rally at Nash Square in Raleigh.

In declaring the verdict, Judge Prethow Winborne said: "This is a small case, a small incident with tremendous ramifications."

Klan attorney Lester Chalmers said he would appeal to Wake County Superior Court. As Mrs. Krame entered the courtroom she was served with a warrant signed by Mrs. Beach swearing Mrs. Krame, 22, had slapped her at the same rally.

Judge Winborne dismissed that case.

In the first case, Mrs. Krame, the only witness said she, her husband and a friend came to Raleigh July 31 to attend a "lecture" by Dr. (Martin Luther) King."

Mrs. Krame said she and her companions were interested in seeing the Klan rally they had heard was to coincide with King's appearance. She said the group "followed" some Klan marchers from midtown Raleigh to Nash Square.

She said she nor any member of her group spoke to a person. All three were wearing civil rights buttons, she said.

Mrs. Krame said she believed the buttons were the cause of an attack on her by "four or five... or six" Klan women. She said Mrs. Beach reached her first and was screaming.

Defense attorney Chalmers asked her why she was wearing the button. "Because I didn't want to be associated with that group (the Klan)," she said.

"You were just there to agitate, weren't you?" Chambers asked. "No sir, you are incorrect," replied Mrs. Krame.
